

Novotel Mumbai Juhu Beach celebrates Solidarity Week

Novotel Mumbai Juhu Beach recently associated with three NGOs - Shanti Hastkala, Dilkhush Special School, and My India on the occasion of Solidarity Week 2017, an initiative by AccorHotels. The three NGOs showcased a biennale exhibition of paintings, clothes, accessories and bags.

Solidarity Week by AccorHotels celebrates unity and generosity around the world. The reputed international hospitality brand has involved over 18,000 employees in more than 500 hotels globally. For the same, hotels have to choose a charity or organisation of their choice and extend their support by raising awareness towards the cause. Shanti Hastkala supports women empowerment from the villages of Gujarat, whereas Dilkhush Special School is dedicated towards developing the skills of specially abled adults, and My India works for the welfare of street children across Mumbai and helps them with basic education and training so that they can be a better individual of the society.

A key event for AccorHotels employees around the world, Solidarity Week has constantly grown. Since 2008, it has supported more than 300 projects in 47 countries. This year's edition has been announced on a large scale and teams across the globe have come up with innovative ideas to rally themselves and help the communities around them.
