

Govt. aims to standardise hotel check-out times nationwide

Diverse hotel check-out times across regions often pose a challenge for travelers, leading to unintentional overstay and extra charges. Acknowledging this issue, the government, informed by consumer feedback, is taking steps to address it.

According to sources Government plans are underway for discussions with industry stakeholders to establish standardized check-out times, aligning with global norms. This initiative aims to streamline the process, enhancing convenience for consumers and fostering better communication between hotels and guests. With uniform check-out times nationwide, travelers can expect smoother check-ins and reduced inconvenience, ultimately improving the overall hotel experience.
