The Park Navi Mumbai has been awarded the Indian Green Building Council (IGBC) Certification, reinforcing the hotel's strong commitment to sustainable hospitality through responsible design, efficient operations and environmentally conscious practices.

Strategically located near the operational Navi Mumbai International Airport (T1), the hotel has embedded sustainability into the core of its operations while delivering a refined luxury experience aligned with global environmental benchmarks. The certification recognises the property's sustained efforts to reduce its environmental footprint without compromising on comfort or service excellence.

Among the key initiatives acknowledged by IGBC is the hotel's use of solar energy, which significantly lowers dependence on conventional power sources. The property has also implemented advanced water-conservation systems, energy-efficient operational protocols and comprehensive waste-management practices, including segregation and responsible disposal. Together, these measures enable optimal resource utilisation while supporting long-term environmental objectives.

Commenting on the achievement, Rahul Makhija, General Manager, said, "Earning IGBC certification is a proud milestone for our team and reaffirms our long-standing commitment to responsible hospitality. From water-saving innovations to robust waste-management systems, sustainability is deeply embedded in our day-to-day operations. Our philosophy goes beyond compliance—these initiatives enhance the guest experience while contributing meaningfully to the community and the environment. We remain focused on setting higher benchmarks for sustainable luxury."

With this recognition, The Park Navi Mumbai joins a growing cohort of hospitality leaders demonstrating that luxury and sustainability can coexist—shaping a more responsible and future-ready hospitality landscape.
