

Sula Vineyards puts Indian wines on the global map with multiple awards

Sula Vineyards has once again brought Indian wine into the global spotlight, delivering an outstanding performance at the Decanter World Wine Awards (DWAA) 2025, the world's largest and most prestigious wine competition.

A Testament to Indian Terroir and Excellence

Four of Sula's premium wines were awarded Silver medals by an international panel of expert judges, recognized for their balance, complexity, and authentic expression of Indian terroir:

- The Source Reserve Chenin Blanc
- The Source Sauvignon Blanc Reserve
- Dindori Reserve Chardonnay
- Dindori Reserve Viognier

These accolades underscore Sula's continued leadership in crafting world-class wines rooted in Indian soil.

A Win for Passion and Precision

"We are truly honoured to be recognised at the Decanter World Wine Awards 2025," said Gorakh Gaikwad, COO & Chief Winemaker at Sula Vineyards. "This achievement reflects the dedication and hard work of our entire winemaking team. It's a celebration of our deep belief in Indian terroir and our commitment to elevating Indian wines on the global stage."

Celebrating Distinctive Styles

Each of the awarded wines showcases Sula's distinctive approach to winemaking:

- The Source Reserve Chenin Blanc offers vibrant tropical notes and crisp acidity.

- The Source Sauvignon Blanc Reserve shines with its bright freshness, reflecting Nashik's cool-climate expression.
- Dindori Reserve Chardonnay is elegant and layered, with subtle oak and refined structure.
- Dindori Reserve Viognier stands out for its aromatic richness and varietal purity, a promising benchmark for Viognier in India.

Raising the Bar for Indian Wine

These global accolades mark another proud chapter in Sula's journey as a pioneer of premium Indian wine. With each recognition, the brand not only raises the bar for Indian viticulture but also reinforces its role in shaping a bold, quality-driven future for wines from the subcontinent.
