

India's first airport microbrewery opens in Goa

Susegado, India's first microbrewery at an airport, has officially opened its doors at Goa's Manohar International Airport, offering travelers a unique introduction to Goan culture, flavors, and hospitality. The microbrewery, named after the iconic Goan term "Susegad"—symbolizing relaxation and ease—brings a one-of-a-kind experience that blends the charm of Goa with craft beer and culinary excellence.

A collaboration between Rising Tide Beverages, Lane Nine Hospitality, and Radiance (a subsidiary of IRHPL), Susegado redefines airport dining, creating an inviting space where guests can immerse themselves in Goa's spirit from the moment they arrive.

A Space That Embodies Goa

Spread across 5,000 square feet, Susegado's design draws inspiration from vintage Goan homes and the elegance of a jazz bar, offering a relaxed yet sophisticated atmosphere. Its warm and welcoming ambience is designed to make both travelers and locals feel at home while they enjoy freshly brewed beers alongside authentic Goan cuisine.

Signature Brews and Flavors

At the core of Susegado's offerings is its range of freshly brewed beers, crafted with a focus on local ingredients and flavors. Some of the standout brews include:

- Poder's Pilsner: A crisp lager brewed with upcycled Goan bread.
- Kokum Gose: A tangy, German-style beer infused with kokum extract.
- English Ale: A balanced brew that caters to both beer connoisseurs and curious first-timers.

These craft beers are paired with a menu featuring traditional Goan dishes, allowing visitors to savor the authentic tastes of Goa in every sip and bite.

A Celebration of Craft and Culture

Beyond dining, Susegado offers brewery tours and tastings, providing a behind-the-scenes look at the brewing process and the inspiration behind each creation. Travelers can also look forward to exclusive experimental beers and cross-Konkan collaborations, elevating the microbrewery's offerings to a new level of innovation.

Leadership's Vision

Speaking on the launch, an IRHPL spokesperson shared, "We are thrilled to introduce Susegado at the Manohar International Airport. Our vision is to create an airport experience that truly embodies the spirit of Goa. By offering travelers a taste of Goan culture and flavors in a vibrant, authentic setting, we hope to make their journey unforgettable."

With its perfect blend of Goan hospitality, innovative craft beer, and regional cuisine, Susegado promises to be more than just a microbrewery—it's a gateway to the heart of Goa's heritage and charm.
